“As a holistic veterinarian, I have more ways to help my patients. Natural healing modalities such as nutrition, the knowledgeable use of herbs, and non-drug substances are not fully recognized by the traditional medical training I received. When I came to fully appreciate how I could apply this information in my medical practice, I had better treatment outcomes and healthier patients. Doctors who do not study outside the box of drugs and surgery cannot enjoy the full benefits of restoring health.”

“Having spent the last 13 years developing a worldwide animal acupressure training program is the most gratifying experience of my entire life. There is nothing more I could want in this lifetime then to share my knowledge of animal acupressure and traditional Chinese medicine with people who love and care for animals as deeply as I do. When my partner, Nancy Zidonis, and I started Tallgrass Animal Acupressure Institute we just knew that animal acupressure was a powerful healing tool and it is an honor and a joy to see animals receiving the benefits of this work.”
